Things completed last week:
- Catherine added mock data to the github that front-end can start using for web pages while waiting for the dataset
- Miranda completed the edits to the general user wireframe/view on figma and added it to the github

Things discussed today and for next time:
- Christian plans on working on the general homepage
- Backend is waiting on the query descriptions
    - Billy is making sure that there isn't any overlap for them
    - Will be done by the following scrum (same plan we laid out last scrum
- Front-end will start working on their respective pages
    - Miranda will also start the general CSS (adding in the fonts, color hex codes, general layout, etc)
